Education Resource Group proudly presents:

Kelly Gallagher: Building Deeper Readers and Writers

“A critical reader in the classroom makes for a discerning reader outside school.” — Kelly Gallagher

Isn't this what educators and the Common Core Standards are striving to create—students who read critically and articulate their deep understanding effectively through writing? How do we make it happen in our classrooms?

Join us as Kelly Gallagher, one of the nation's leading experts on teaching reading and writing, shows us how to build deeper readers and writers. Gallagher will guide us through how to be teachers instead of simply information dispensers and how to use conversation and collaboration to support and deepen comprehension.

Don't miss this opportunity to build your instructional toolkit. Check out event details and register early. Spots will fill up quickly!

About Kelly Gallagher

Kelly Gallagher is a high school English teacher and author of 5 texts on reading instruction. His books include Reading Reasons: Motivational Mini-Lessons for Middle and High School (Stenhouse 2003), Deeper Reading: Comprehending Challenging Texts, 4-12 (Stenhouse 2004) and most recently, Write Like This: Teaching Real World Writing Through Modeling and Mentor Texts (Stenhouse 2011). He has been dedicated to building and sharing his knowledge of literacy for over 22 years.
