

Education Resource Group proudly presents:

Michelle Himmelman: Make Learning Come Alive

Unleashing the Thinking Potential in All Students

About the Workshop

Join us as Michelle introduces you to practical strategies that unleash the thinking potential in all learners. Having students think beyond the classroom is a desire of all teachers. Come and discover how you can achieve this goal while:

- Building every student's mastery with high-level thinking skills.
- Promoting active learning.
- Encouraging students to analyze, evaluate, and create.

Each registration includes a binder containing lesson plans and a teacher resource CD. This resource is correlated to the Common Core State Standards and is aligned to the interdisciplinary themes from the Partnership for 21st Century Skills.

About Michelle Himmelman

Michelle earned her M.Ed. in Gifted Education from Elon University in North Carolina. She has previously worked with the Duke University Talent Identification Program (TIP) as a curriculum designer. Michelle presented at the Duke TIP Summer Institute for Educators as well as the North Carolina Association for the Gifted and Talented State Conference. Michelle currently works as an education consultant with Education Resource Group based in Winston Salam, NC. She travels throughout the country promoting effective literacy instruction and the development of higher order thinking strategies for grades K-12. Michelle enjoys sharing her passion for education with teachers who seek to promote the thinking potential in all students.
