One person is the pouncer, this should be the oldest person in the group to start the game. Everyone else hold a piece of string with a button on the end. The pouncer rolls the red number cube to determine the target number. The pouncer then rolls the two blue cubes. If the numbers rolled can equal the target number by addition, subtraction, multiplication, or division, then the pouncer tries to catch all the buttons but placing their cup on top of the buttons. Meanwhile the person holding the string with the buttons will try to pull their button out so the pouncer cannot catch them. Play continues around the table as the next person become the pouncer. If you would like to keep score then each person who escapes the pouncer gets a point and the pouncer gets a point for each person they catch.
